

INSTRUCTION

Write • fold • throw

Write ONE non-obvious line about yourself. No name on the outside. Fold a paper plane. On the count, throw it across the room.

If it could be read off a name tag, it doesn't qualify.

FOLLOW-UP

Find & ask

Read the line you caught aloud, find who wrote it, then ask one real follow-up — not "is this you?" but "how did that come about?".

One thing learned

Go around: name the plane you caught and the one thing you learned about its author.

RULE

Nothing obvious

"Three years here" is not a plane. "I was a touring chess player" is. The mix comes from the throw, not the seat.
